BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Frank Paxton, Jr. attended the University of Washington and Virginia Military Institute before serving in the United States Army from 1941 to 1945. He joined the Paxton Lumber Company, founded in 1914, by his father, in 1946. He became president upon his father’s death in 1951, continued as chief executive until 1989, and chairman until 1990. Determined to provide his customers with exactly what they paid for, Paxton established what is now the industry pricing standard, price based on kiln-dried measurements rather than the pre-dried size. In the 1970s, Paxton earned a national business ethics award for leading pricing reform in the lumber industry. He became the president of the National Wholesale Lumber Dealers Association and was credited with helping keep the woodworking trade alive by supplying wood, woodworking supplies, and equipment to schools.
Paxton was active in civic and educational circles. He served on the Kansas City Board of Police Commissioners, from 1977 to 1981, and was a founding chairman of the Thomas Hart Benton Association. Frank Paxton, Jr. was known for his wide-ranging interests and dedication to causes that benefitted the public. He was a business partner of McCoy Elementary in the Kansas City School District, and provided leadership and financial support to De LaSalle Education Center, Genesis School, and the Guadalupe Center. One of his final projects was writing an article entitled “Job training programs keep kids in school” which appeared in the Kansas City Star, July 27, 1997.
