Frank Grimaldi (1924-2010) Architectural Records Collection
c. 1920-2010
375 cubic feet + oversize flat items

Architectural drawings, plans, renderings, construction documents, books and journals, records and work papers of Frank Grimaldi Architecture and its predecessor entities, including Bower and Grimaldi Architecture, and Shaughnessy, Bower and Grimaldi Architecture.

BIOGRAPHY:

Frank Grimaldi was born September 25, 1924, in Arma, KS, the son of Alex and Rose Grimaldi. After attending St. Benedict’s (now Benedictine) College, and Kansas State University, he earned an architecture degree in 1947 from the University of Notre Dame, where he won the coveted Dome Award as one of four Outstanding Men of the Class of ’47, mainly for his work editing “a war-weary Scholastic [the student news magazine] whose trail was dogged with such unpleasantries as material shortages, draft boards, and accelerated programs.”

After graduation, Frank joined the Kansas City architectural firm of Shaughnessy and Bower in which during his long career, he was an employee, partner, and later owner as Frank Grimaldi Architecture. When he died January 29, 2010, he was the longest continually practicing architect in Kansas City, working for more than six decades designing or managing the design of more than 100 buildings and projects, most recently working on the expansion of De La Salle Education Center (formerly Lillis High School).

As one architect colleague put it, Frank was known as a church architect, especially for the Roman Catholic Church, for whom he designed, remodeled, and renovated churches, rectories, schools, convents, mausoleums, college administration and residence halls throughout Missouri and Kansas. Central to his work was the belief that architecture inspires faith and education. Though his designs, Frank influenced hundreds of thousands of people—among Frank’s and his firm’s many projects are Saint Thomas Aquinas, Rockhurst, and Miege High Schools; Massman Hall at Rockhurst University; the Church of the Ascension and Prince of Peace Churches in Kansas; Saint Elizabeth, Saint Robert Bellarmine, and Shrine of Saint Patrick Churches in Missouri; and schools at Visitation and Saint Francis Xavier.

In addition to his work with sacred structures Frank also worked on buildings throughout the region for United Missouri Bank (UMB), Southwestern Bell Telephone, and the State of Missouri Employment Security Division, including the Kansas City building, located at 1411 Main Street (now razed for the Power and Light District) for which Shaughnessy, Bower, and Grimaldi received an award for creative use of structural forms.

Equally important was Frank’s contribution to professional and other organizations. He served as president of the Kansas City Chapter of the American Institute of Architects, and was a long standing member of the Missouri Board for Architects, Professional Engineers, Professional Land Surveyors and Landscape Architects and the National Council of Architectural Registration Boards, and Missouri Board of Architects and Engineers. He was also an early advocate for building designs providing access to people with disabilities through his service with the President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped, the Rehabilitation Institute and Easter Seal Society.
