These are two map brochures published by the Western Missouri Land-O-Lakes Association to promote tourism in the area including the “upper arm” of the Lake of the Ozarks, Pomme de Terre Lake, and the planned Stockton Lake and Kaysinger Bluff (later Harry S. Truman) Reservoir.

The earlier of these two brochures was published about 1962 at El Dorado Springs, Missouri. It includes a highway map of the “Land-O-Lakes” region on one side and lists of participating businesses, arranged by locality, on the other. On the map the Stockton and Kaysinger Bluff projects are shown as proposed.

The later brochure was published about 1965 at Appleton City, Missouri. It includes a regional map on one side and detailed inset maps for the four impoundments on the other. These maps indicate that the Stockton and Kaysinger Bluff reservoirs are “under construction.” Resorts and attractions are listed on the maps for Pomme de Terre Lake and the “headwaters area” of the Lake of the Ozarks, while “historical points” are indicated on the regional map.
