This is material concerning the Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Company, which owned mines in Arizona and Colorado but had corporate offices in Kansas City, Missouri. Included are promotional materials and receipts for shares of stock from the company’s “financial agent,” Isaac W. Dumm.

The Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Company was incorporated under the laws of Arizona and had a nominal capitalization of $10,000,000, with its “main office” at 418 Gumbel Building in Kansas City, Missouri. Officers included President James G. Strean, Vice-President and General Counsel Frank P. Blair, Treasurer Ernest J. White, Secretary O. B. Stanton, Jr., and General Manager/Superintendent of Construction O. B. Stanton. “Financial Agent” I. W. Dumm, whose office was at 220-224 Shukert Building in Kansas City, aggressively marketed investments in the firm to the general public.

Included in the collection are two promotional booklets, Facts and Figures about the Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Co. and Facts and Figures for Thinking Investors by Frank P. Blair, Vice-President and General Counsel of Consolidated Copper Creek Mining Co., which were used to market shares in the firm to the general public.

There is a letter dated 14 August 1906 from Dumm to Michael J. Delaney of Mount Carmel Center, Connecticut, thanking Delaney for sending $3.50, “being one-tenth payment on 700 shares … at five cents a share.” There are two “Receipt for Stock” certificates, dated 14 August 1906 and 11 September 1906, representing the first and second payments on Delaney’s subscription.

The final item in the collection is a form letter, dated 3 February 1909, from Secretary and Treasurer E. J. White to “The Stockholders,” assuring them of the future financial success of the company, which now included properties at Bull Hill in the Cripple Creek Mining District in Colorado. White urged investors to purchase additional stock, so that the Cripple Creek operation could be brought into production.
