INTRODUCTION

The papers of Ann Bryan Mariano McKay, a journalist and Vietnam War correspondent, consist primarily of material relating to her work on the independent newspaper, Overseas Weekly, and include newspapers, newspaper copy, photographs, correspondence, and legal materials regarding a lawsuit over distribution of the newspaper in Vietnam. Other materials in the collection document her work with Vietnamese orphanages, as well as various aspects of both her personal and professional life, including a return trip to Vietnam in 1995 with her adopted daughter.

DONOR INFORMATION

The papers were donated to the University of Missouri by Ann Bryan Mariano McKay on 22 July 2003 (Accession No. 6008). Additions to the collection were donated by Robert McKay on 5 April 2004 and 25 June 2004. Other additions were made by several friends in March and April 2009. The collection is part of the National Women and Media Collection.

BIOGRAPHICAL SKETCH

Ann Bryan Mariano McKay was born Grace Ann Bryan on August 18, 1932 in San Angelo, Texas to William Curtis Bryan and Annie Mae Moore Bryan. She graduated from Ballinger High School in Ballinger, Texas in 1949. In 1951, she received an A.S. degree from Tarleton State College in Stephenville, Texas. She went on to attend the University of Texas, before graduating from Texas Technological College in 1953 with a bachelor's degree in journalism.

From 1953 to 1957, Bryan worked at the San Angelo Standard-Times in Texas, as a reporter and photographer before being promoted to editor of the women's pages. In 1958, she moved to New York City and worked briefly as a stewardess before taking a job in Germany in 1959 with the Overseas Weekly (OW), an independent tabloid aimed at enlisted men.

While in Germany, Bryan worked as editor of the Overseas Family, a sister publication of OW. In 1966, she went to Vietnam to launch a Pacific Edition of OW, where as editor she ran a one-person operation while the newspaper was getting off the ground. She worked at OW through December 1970, before returning to the U.S.

While in Vietnam, Bryan became heavily involved with the Viet Hoa Orphanage, a facility run by Sister Robert and other Catholic nuns. In 1970, she adopted a daughter from the orphanage, Jane Catherine Thai, who went by Katie, though she was also affectionately known as "Buttons."

During her time in Vietnam, Bryan met Frank Mariano who was serving in the Army. They married in San Francisco on September 5, 1972. Around this time, Frank Mariano adopted Ann's daughter. The family returned to Vietnam later that year and adopted a second daughter, Anna Francesca Hoa “Mai” Mariano, in 1973. She was called Hoa when she was young and Mai when she became older.

Upon their return to Vietnam, both Frank and Ann Mariano worked for ABC News, while Ann also did freelance work. Ann also continued working with the Viet Hoa Orphanage and other orphanages as she assisted families in the U.S. and Canada during their adoptions of Vietnamese children. In 1974, the Mariano family moved to Hong Kong after ABC News closed the Saigon Bureau of its Southeast Asian Office. During April 1975, Ann was in Vietnam to cover Operation Babylift as thousands of orphans were airlifted out of Vietnam. She was one of the last Americans evacuated from Saigon before the city fell.

In 1975, the Mariano family moved back to the U.S. Shortly thereafter, Frank Mariano suffered from heart problems and died on August 8, 1976 in Washington, D.C. Katie Mariano died September 7, 1983 after battling a brain tumor for three years.

During the late 1970s, Ann Mariano began writing for the Washington Post and remained there until her retirement in 1996. One of her last assignments for the newspaper involved returning to Vietnam with her daughter Mai.

Ann Mariano married Robert McKay on June 7, 2001, and they lived in Massachusetts until her death on February 25, 2009.

SCOPE AND CONTENT NOTE

The Ann Bryan Mariano McKay Papers largely consist of materials relating to her work at the Overseas Weekly, and include newspapers, newspaper copy, correspondence, and photographs.

The papers also document McKay’s work with Vietnamese orphanages during the Vietnam War and various other aspects of both her personal and professional life. The papers have been arranged into the following nine series:

- Overseas Weekly, Pacific Edition
- Other Overseas Media Publications
- Overseas Media Legal Files
- Professional
- Southeast Asia and Vietnam Files
- Vietnamese Orphans and Orphanages
- Personal
- Family
- Audiovisual

The Overseas Weekly, Pacific Edition (OWP) series is arranged alphabetically and then chronologically by type of material. The series includes newspapers and newspaper copy, as well as correspondence, news photographs, and story files. Founded in Europe in 1950 by Marion von Rospach and four others, OW and its sister publications were published by the Overseas Media Corporation (OMC). When Marion von Rospach died in October 1969, majority ownership of OMC passed to her mother, Ethel Morrow, who subsequently sold the business to Joseph B. Kroesen in 1970. The corporation shut down sometime in the mid-1970s. The newspaper covered various aspects of military life, ranging from hard-hitting exposes to human interest stories. Major staples of the paper included coverage of military courts martial, R&R pieces, and sexy pinups.

The copy consists mainly of news copy or story drafts, but also includes notes, internal correspondence, newspaper clippings, and military press releases. Regular columns included man-on-the-street interviews; "Hotline," a series of short news snippets; "Green Machine," a satire on military life; and several R&R columns on Bangkok, Hong Kong, and Sydney, Australia. The man-on-the-street interviews with troops concern a wide range of issues, some of which include curfew, combat pay, laundry service, presidential nominations, the possibility of troop withdrawal, and marijuana usage, among many others. Donald Pratt began writing the "Green Machine" column under the pseudonym Donald Essen; Donald Hirst took over the column in August 1970. All of the copy produced by the staff in Vietnam did not make it into the published paper.

Among the April 1967 copy is correspondence that was found on a deceased member of the Viet Cong. Addressed to his mother and brother, the letters have holes through the center believed to be caused by a bullet. Both letters, along with an identification card and a list of goods received, have been translated into English.

The general correspondence documents the setting up of the Pacific edition, including acquiring licenses, printing and shipping of the paper, gaining authorization to military post exchanges, as well as issues of personnel, distribution, circulation, advertising, and censorship. The general correspondence also contains a large amount of information regarding finances and editorial policy.

The news photographs consist of prints, as well as contact sheets and negatives.

The OWP newspapers are available on microfilm. The originals have also been retained. The series contains no newspapers for 1968, and there are other smaller gaps as well. The earlier newspapers contain more European coverage than later editions. The newspapers also contain a number of syndicated columns, as well as sports and entertainment coverage from outside Vietnam. Loose leaf comic sheets are inserted inside most of the newspapers, as are mail order shoppers and advertisements. Not all of the advertisements have been retained, only examples of each advertising flier.

The story files contain notes, article drafts and miscellaneous resources for news stories. The systems report for the Hong Kong branch of OMC contains recommendations for the branch's accounting system. The miscellaneous material contains Ann Bryan's business cards as editor of the Pacific edition, as well as invitations for cocktails to celebrate her and another employee's departure from Vietnam.

The Other Overseas Media Publications series contains material from a variety of OMC publications. The series includes articles written by McKay as a correspondent in Vietnam for the Overseas Family and the European edition of OW, as well as copies of the following newspapers, all of which are available on microfilm and computer disc: Overseas Family, Overseas Hi-Fi Stereo Shopper, Overseas Photo Shopper, and the Overseas Weekly, European Edition (OWE). The series also includes staff photographs, story drafts, and a brief history of OWE.

The OWE newspapers contain some overlap in news coverage with OWP; however, the majority of its content is different from that of OWP and focuses on U.S. troops stationed in Europe. One column featured only in OWE is "OW's Good Guy Award," which recognized ordinary enlisted men for their acts of heroism, honesty, and human kindness.

The miscellaneous material includes Marion von Rospach's obituary and a reprint of "Getting Along with OW," an article written by Col. Douglas Lindsey. The material also includes Edwin A. Walker's pamphlet "The Walker Story of a Major General Pro Blue." In 1961, OWE published an expose concerning Walker's political indoctrination of troops in his division through the distribution of anti-Communist literature from the John Birch Society, a controversy which eventually resulted in his resignation from the Army.

The Overseas Media Legal Files series contains materials relating to Overseas Media, et al. vs. Robert S. McNamara. The case dealt with the struggle of the Overseas Media Corporation to gain access to military post exchanges in order to distribute OWP in Vietnam. In 1970, the name of the lawsuit was changed to Overseas Media, et al. vs. Melvin Laird, as McNamara was no longer Secretary of Defense. Later that year, the lawsuit was dropped altogether.

The material in this series consists of depositions by McKay and Klaus Heymann, as well as affidavits, a brief for the appellants, and a joint appendix, along with considerable correspondence dealing with matters of circulation and distribution. The distribution journal contains a chronicle of the obstacles the newspaper faced in gaining distribution throughout Vietnam. "The Overseas Weekly Story" is a bound compilation of materials relating to the lawsuit. The photographs of military PX newsstands were taken in an effort to demonstrate that lack of display space was not a valid excuse to exclude the newspaper from being sold at military post exchanges.

The Professional series contains material related to McKay's other work as a journalist, including at the Washington Post and the San Angelo Standard-Times, as well as freelance work for Asia Magazine and the Children's Relief Fund. The series also contains news photographs taken during the Vietnam War, a partial draft of a speech concerning working as a woman journalist during the war, press cards, and miscellaneous story files which contain article drafts and resource materials.

A large portion of the series contains material documenting McKay's return trip to Vietnam in 1995 with her daughter Mai, and includes photographs, a travel journal written by Mai, and article drafts. The trip was to result in a story for the Washington Post; however, it appears to never have been published.

The Southeast Asia and Vietnam Files series contains a variety of material relating to Vietnam and Southeast Asia. While most of the series appears to be resource material, much of the material could be either personal or professional in nature. Contact sheets, which make up a large portion of the photographic material, contain both personal and professional images.

As for material clearly of a professional nature, it is unclear whose work it is and/or for what agency. Most of the material likely pertains to McKay's work as a foreign correspondent either for OWP, ABC News, or as a freelance journalist; however some of the material may be from Frank Mariano's work at ABC News.

The Vietnamese Orphans and Orphanages series contains files on a number of American and Canadian families that McKay assisted during their adoption of Vietnamese children, as well as families she met through her work with Sister Robert's Viet Hoa Orphanage. These files mostly contain correspondence and photographs. The series also contains a photograph album and miscellaneous loose photographs of families with their adopted children which Sister Robert gave to McKay just before the fall of Saigon in April 1975. Other material in this series includes newsletters, news articles, adoptive resources, and materials relating to Operation Babylift.

The Personal series contains the personal papers of McKay and includes photographs, correspondence, scrapbooks and journals. The scrapbooks cover her high school and college years and include numerous photographs. The journals have been written in a variety of notebooks, as well as on loose leaf pages. The entries are not entirely chronological as it appears Mariano switched back and forth between different notebooks. A large portion of the journals deals with her daughter Katie's struggle against cancer and the grieving process after her death.

The Family series contains correspondence and family photographs, including photos and slides from Ann and Frank Mariano's wedding. The series also contains the papers of Mae Moore Bryan, Frank Mariano, Katie Mariano, and Anna "Mai" Mariano. Their papers include memorial materials, correspondence, journals, photographs, a scrapbook, and adoption records. Other materials in the series include a Bryan family history, newspaper clippings, and birth, death, and marriage certificates.

The Audiovisual series is comprised mainly of audio cassettes, as well as one reel of 16 mm film of Frank Mariano doing a news report. The audio cassettes have been arranged by category and then loosely chronological within each category as a number of cassettes have segments from several different time periods on them. The family audio cassettes contain messages from Mae and Curtis Bryan to the Mariano family in Vietnam, as well as messages to Ann from Frank and Katie. The series also contains interviews conducted by McKay and news reports and interviews conducted/given by Frank Mariano. Some of Frank Mariano's reports and interviews overlap onto the following audio cassette.

The miscellaneous cassettes contain a conversation between Ann and Frank Mariano regarding plans for a book on Ann's experiences in Vietnam; an audio message from Do Van Kien, a Vietnamese friend of the Mariano family who was a refugee and emigrated to the U.S. after the fall of Saigon; an audio message from Johanna Spicuzza, an Ohio woman who worked with Ann on adoptions of Vietnamese children; and interviews conducted by Frank and Ann Mariano at a rehabilitation center in Vietnam. Some of the miscellaneous cassettes contain a mix of both personal and professional segments.
