Herbert E. Duncan was born in 1905. He graduated from Westport High School in Kansas City, Missouri, and went on to earn a degree in philosophy and religion from the University of Kansas City. He began his architectural career in 1927 as an apprentice with the firm Boillet and Lauck. Prior to his apprenticeship with the firm, Duncan had had no formal educational training in the field of architecture.

In 1937, Duncan opened his own firm, Herbert Duncan and Associates, specializing in the construction of small residences. In 1957, his son, Herbert Duncan, Jr., joined the firm. At this time, residential design remained the firm’s core focus but the firm began to expand to include construction of office buildings, shopping centers, educational facilities, and museums. In the late 1970s, the firm changed its name to Duncan Architects, Inc. Today, the firm is known as Stark Wilson Duncan Architects Inc (SWD).

Duncan is responsible for the design and construction of over 300 residences in Leawood, Kansas, including his own home in 1938. He designed and constructed five high-rise apartment buildings for the Country Club Plaza and Village Green, which became the prototype for multifamily housing projects in the Kansas City area after World War II. Several of his residential designs earned him awards from the Kansas City Chapter of the American Institute of Architects.

Along with the construction of residential properties, Duncan also designed and constructed commercial, educational, museum, and medical structures. These included the Sealright complex in Kansas City, Kansas, Newcomb Hall located on the University of Missouri-Kansas City campus, the Diastole Building at the University of Missouri-Kansas City’s University of Health Sciences, additions to the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art, and the original Corinth Elementary School located in Prairie Village, Kansas.

In addition to architecture, Herbert E. Duncan was also an ordained minister. He served the Community Christian Church and the Westminster Congregational Church, both located in Kansas City, and the Colonial Church in Prairie Village, Kansas.

Arrangement:

The drawings have been arranged in chronological order within each box by the processor. Where drawings have the same year of construction they are then listed in alphabetical order within the year of construction. Note that there are several instances where a complete address was not provided on the sets of architectural drawings.
Scope and Content Note:

The records consist of 278 sets of architectural drawings drafted between 1929 and 1992 primarily in Kansas and Missouri. In addition to Herbert E. Duncan, architects also included in this collection are Robert E. Duncan, William M. Conrad, Leon Maslan and Co., McCormick and French Architects, Jan Bourg, Nakamora, and Associates, the architectural firm of Wight and Wight, and the architectural firm of Patty Berkebile Nelson Duncan Monroe Lefevre (PBNDML) Architects. Other locations include one construction project each in Pennsylvania, Arkansas, Canada, and the United States Virgin Islands. Note that Alfred Masteron and the engineering firm of Tuttle, Ayers, and Woodward, Co. were consulted on several drawings.

The vast majority of the residences found within this collection were designed in the prairie or ranch style of architecture. There are several examples of commercial buildings, churches, museums, medical buildings, and primary and secondary educational institutions. Of interest are the drawings associated with the Nelson-Atkins Museum of Art.
