R Hill, Commodore Perry, 1901-1983
125 Collection, 1885-1982
103 folders, 3 volumes, and 91 photographs

This collection is available at The State Historical Society of Missouri. If you would like more information, please contact us at shsresearch@umsystem.edu.

These are newspaper clippings, maps, miscellaneous items, and photographs pertaining to lead mining and related railroad development in the Old Lead Belt, principally of St. Francois and Madison counties in southeastern Missouri. The material is arranged in topical and biographical series.

The Hill collection is the result of a thirty-year avocational interest in the history of the Old Lead Belt. Commodore Perry Hill, Jr., was a native of the area. He was employed for many years by the St. Joseph Lead Company. His interest in history began with research into his own genealogy, but it soon grew to embrace the early history of the Mineral Area. Around 1945, Hill was given an extensive collection of back issues of the Farmington News, which he found to be filled with items on the history of the area and its mining industries. He began a collection of clippings, cutting out the items individually and then arranging them by topic. He supplemented the clippings with information gleaned from county records and secondary sources, and data from office manuals and equipment price lists of the mining companies, which he also collected. Hill was a virtual almanac of Lead Belt history, and was, in his later years, a frequent correspondent and arbiter of historical details for area newspapers. He died at Bonne Terre, Missouri, on 31 August 1983.

The Hill collection has five parts: topical files of newspaper clippings; biographical files of newspaper clippings; pamphlets and printed material; mining company records; and photographs. The clipping files are the most extensive sections of the collection, especially for the years 1900-1935, although some clippings date to 1885. The best-documented subjects are: mining and mining firms; railroad development, particularly the Mississippi River & Bonne Terre Railroad and the Houck lines; industrial accidents and fatalities; and the history of St. Francois County and its towns and villages. The biographical files include obituaries, wedding announcements, and notes on many residents of St. Francois County.

The printed material pertains almost entirely to the St. Joseph Lead Company and its subsidiaries. There are parts lists for Sullivan drills, St. Joe shovels, and Goodman locomotives, all of which were widely used in the Lead Belt. There are also agreements between the mining and railroad companies and operating locals of labor unions, office manuals, and railroad rulebooks and timetables.

The photograph file consists of 91 black-and-white prints of mining scenes and equipment. Many are original prints, and negatives accompany most. Many are views made by Robert Arnoldi of Flat River, who apparently made most of the well-known photographs of the area of turn-of-the-century vintage. Only about a quarter are dated, but Hill provided identification for most of them. There are views of underground and surface operations from several different mines and featuring different types of equipment. Operations of the Doe Run Lead Company, the Federal Lead Company, and the St. Joseph Lead Company are represented in the photograph collection.

Shelf List

These are newspaper clippings, maps, miscellaneous items, and photographs pertaining to lead mining and related railroad development in the Old Lead Belt, principally of St. Francois and Madison counties in southeastern Missouri. The material is arranged in topical and biographical series.

Section I (Folders 1-69): Topical file, 1885-1982.

Newspaper clippings, maps, and miscellaneous notes on mining and mining companies, local history, industrial accidents, railroad development, and county and municipal business. Arranged chronologically under each topic.

Section II (Folders 70-89): Biographical file, 1885-1970.

Newspaper clippings of obituaries, wedding announcements, and biographical notes. Arranged alphabetically. An index of surnames is available.

Section III (Folders 90-101): Pamphlets and printed material, 1920-1982.

Mining equipment parts lists, printed labor agreements, and railroad timetables.

Section IV (Volumes 1-3): Mining company records, 1917-1972.

Missouri Metals Corporation and St. Joe Minerals Corporation.

Section V (Photographs 1-91): Photograph file, ca. 1890-ca. 1940.

Black-and-white photographs, almost all of which appear to be copies of views of mining scenes by Lead Belt photographer Robert Arnoldi. There are also views of a re-enactment of lead smelting at Cresswell's furnace in northern Washington County. Most of the prints have accompanying negatives.
